Some words on the research design

Research design grades are posted

- Grades are posted on Blackboard
- As I've said for weeks, this was a hard assignment: a good design requires thoughtful, creative, and academically rigorous work.
- Still, many groups got very high grades – congrats!
- As I insisted throughout the semester, in class and in writing, AI was not allowed in this assignment and your submissions needed to be your own. Some groups got a zero because it was clear in the submission and the in the defense that at least part of the design was done with AI.

Research design next steps

- If you want to request a revision, you must do so by email and no later than today.
 - We'd look at the design together and I'd give more details on the weaknesses that subtracted points
 - Grades can go up but also can go down as a result of a revision
- Meetings this afternoon or tomorrow, in person or on Zoom
- In general I don't change grades unless I've made a mistake when grading or posting.

Reminders on final exam rules

Final exam rules

- 40% of the grade
- You must pass the final exam (50% or more) to pass the course
- The exam covers the readings + lectures + exercises in sessions 1-29
- Closed book, on paper
- Only closed questions: true/false, multiple choice
- 75 minutes for 45 questions.

Safeguards to ensure you are all on the same conditions

- You must take the seat assigned to you
- Only the exam and a pen in front of you – no exceptions:
cases, bottles, coffees etc not allowed
- I won't answer questions about the exam once we start – do your best with what you have in front of you
- You must take the exam on your own with no assistance of any sort other than what's in your brain.
- The following behaviors during the exam would be violations of academic integrity standards and treated accordingly:
 - Checking anything other than the exam in front of you
 - Looking at somebody else's exam
 - Communicating with anybody else

Finishing the exam

- When you are done, raise your hand and we'll collect your exam
- You are not allowed to stand up until you have handed your exam
- Please don't gather outside these rooms – go downstairs

What to expect after the exam

- I'll post the solutions this afternoon
- I'll post grades on Blackboard (for the exam and overall) tomorrow
- After that, you can request that I email you a copy of your exam – do so by email
- Revisions will be held in January during term time, according to IE rules
- If you want to appeal any questions, let me know by email by tomorrow preferably
- I won't revise grades based on any potential thresholds (pass/fail, distinction, etc). I only revise grades if I've made a mistake in grading.

Final remarks

- Remember what we talked about in the review session about tips for succeeding in the exam.
- I am certain everybody here can not only pass but get a good grade in this exam
- 75 minutes of focused, honest work... and then you're done with the semester.
- Enjoy your break!
